Friday, when I came home from school, Roscoe was on my steps. He gave me a wave as I got off the bus. Roscoe said, "Let us go to the trail to see if there are doe tracks."

I went inside to tell my dad that I was home and we were going to the trail. Dad said "OK, Joe. I will be in the back if you need me." He went to get a rake and hoe. I asked Dad if we could take Moe, my dog, with us. He said, "Yes, but keep him close to you. A doe and her baby were on the trail, and Moe will chase them."

Roscoe and I went on the trail with Moe. A lot of tree branches were on the trail path. A branch broke to the left of us.

"Shhhh," I said. I saw the doe and her baby by a tree. I held on to Moe. Roscoe crept close to the doe to see if he could pet her.

Roscoe got too close, and the doe wailed! The doe and baby ran deep into the trees.

"Let us go back home. I want to tell my dad," I said.

When we got back, Dad was there. "We saw the doe and baby!" we yelled.

Dad said, "That was fun! Maybe the next time you go, you will see them again."

Roscoe and I said, "Yes, we would like that."
