My friend Ross and I were needing to have a fun weekend trip. We were going on a Friday.

We were going to a quiet place outside of the city. We were so happy to go that we began honking and singing on our way there. We were going to have a nice time!

We went camping. Ross spent time fixing up the tent. He got the sleeping bags in the tent. At last, the campsite was all set up for us. We had everything we needed.

While Ross was fixing up the tent, I was grilling the meal. Ross was sniffing the good smell. He said, "Ray, I am smelling a good meal. I am hungry."

Before long, we were eating hot dogs and drinking pop. Next, we went fishing with our rods in the pond by the campsite. We did not have any luck catching fish, but it was still so relaxing.

We spent lots of time playing music and singing around the campfire. It was so much fun! We were wishing that we did not have to go back to the city. This trip was just what we had needed. We both want to go camping again next year!
